San Diego Natural History Museum Seeks Volunteers for Dead Sea Scrolls Exhibition

San Diego: April 3, 2007—The San Diego Natural History Museum is seeking volunteers for its exhibition, Dead Sea Scrolls, held June 29–December 31. This exhibition is the Museum’s largest undertaking to date and volunteers will be needed:

- To direct groups (groups range in size from 10–400).
- To assist visitors throughout the Museum.
- To provide administrative support associated with the exhibition.

Bilingual volunteers, especially with skill in American Sign Language and/or Spanish are needed. Volunteers are needed at least four hours per week for three months.

The Museum trains all its volunteers: Dead Sea Scrolls training occurs on a regular basis and both daytime and evening sessions are available. To apply go to www.sdnhm.org/volunteers and complete an online application. If you do not have access to the internet please call 619.255.0245.

The Museum’s Dead Sea Scrolls is the largest, most comprehensive exhibition on this topic ever assembled. Created and assembled by the Museum, it includes authentic Dead Sea Scrolls, ancient illuminated manuscripts, artifacts, landscape and aerial photography, and interactive displays about science, discovery, and exploration. The Dead Sea Scrolls—objects of great mystery, intrigue and significance—are among the greatest archaeological discoveries of the 20th century. For more information, visit www.sdscrolls.org.
